

STRIKE THREATENS INDUSTRIAL CRISIS IN GREAT BRITAIN

Million Coal Miners Out Of Pits and Thousands of Industrial Workers Trown Out of Work

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
LONDON, Oct. 16.—With a million miners out of the pits tonight, thousands of dock and industrial workers already out of employment as a result of the transport workers' strike, a sympathetic strike, Great Britain faces one of its greatest industrial upheavals in the opinion of labor and political leaders today.

Reports from industrial centers are not reassuring, while port officials say shipping will be tied up within a week. The most hopeful message came from Sheffield, where it is believed, there is enough coal for three weeks. At the other centers a one week's supply is the limit.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

The statement that the men struck against advice of some of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "duty-free" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaysmen, called it in a speech.

Bisbee Mine Will Reduce Force Nov. 1

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
BISBEE, Ariz., Oct. 16.—Notices were posted today by the Copper Queen branch of the Phelps-Dodge corporation, carrying on extensive mining operations in this district, to the effect that a number of men would be laid off from the Sacramento hill property on Nov. 1.

According to General Manager G. H. Dowell of the Queen branch, this action was taken for two reasons: First, on account of the inability to secure delivery of materials as promised for mill construction, and, second, because the Queen branch has sold none of its copper produced since March 1 of the present year.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

General Manager Dowell further stated that since the first of the year more than $13,000,000 has been expended in the Queen branch, and that the company is confident that alone for combined construction and operation, thereby making it necessary to cut off unnecessary expenditure at this time.

ALIEN DIPLOMATS EXEMPT FROM LAW WHILE SECRETARY SAYS

Revenue Department Will No Longer Search Baggage of Foreign Diplomats At Port of Entry

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Disclosure of a new prohibition snarl, in which three government departments and members of the diplomatic corps are involved, was made today when the state department issued a statement saying it "assumes no official of the government would attempt to pry into the baggage of a foreign diplomatic officer."

The unusual course of the state department in making what appears to be a public appeal to other government officials was adopted, it was learned, after the treasury department had amended customs regulations to require baggage of diplomats to be examined at liquor removed.

Back of the action of the treasury, it was disclosed, was an opinion rendered by the attorney general. It was said that the "Volstead act" with respect to the examination of baggage of diplomats from customs examination of their baggage heretofore accorded.

Diplomats have made no formal protest. The state department, however, has been evidence of irritation among them here. Since the opinion of the attorney general failed to sustain the department's contention that examination exemption be continued, it sought recourse through the public statement, the text of which follows:

"The department presumes that the practice which has prevailed will not be discontinued at this time; that is, there will be no interference with the property of diplomats in the possession of a diplomatic officer or a member of his household. The department, of course, assumes no official of the government would attempt to pry into the baggage of a foreign diplomatic officer."

Differences have arisen between the state and treasury officials. Treasury officials let it be known that the disclosure of the status of diplomats' baggage began last spring. The treasury was said to have formulated a policy then and asked the state department for its views.

State Department Embarrassed
Possibility of the state department's embarrassment, the state department obtained a delay in issuance of new regulations. Late in August, however, Assistant Secretary Shouse, whose resignation was announced only a few days ago, proposed a new world association. At Greenfield, Ind., he asserted "a spokesman" of France had been sent to him to ask that America lead the way in the formation of a world association.

He quoted a similar declaration by Stephan Lausanne, French publicist.

In his talk at Terre Haute, Ind., he charged that the French had "set aside" provisions of the Cummins-Esch railway bill under which coal cars might be so allotted as to insure equitable shipping conditions and prevent much of the idleness among miners.

He asked for a Republican congress to assure work in the national government and to make certain of the complete reversal of Democratic policies and practices.

In his reference to an emissary from France the nominee did not explain when he came from the French republic, but he said he had spoken for American leadership in revising the league covenant.

He declared that the French people were ready to give up the league covenant if necessary to insure America's moral leadership.

The speaker, in his address here, urged extension of American banking and merchant marine facilities, coupled with more efficient development of an inland waterways system, as steps toward development of the nation's foreign trade.

Mexico, South America, Asia, Africa and Australia were designated by the speaker as districts offering inviting opportunities for American commerce. Establishment of an international financial system and extension of the merchant marine would aid in developing trade with the more distant parts of the world, he said, while a co-ordinating policy of inland waterway development would open the way to Mexico and South American strikes.

Quoting statistics of the nation's foreign trade, Senator Harding said that it was apparent Europe could not be expected to offer in the future the same market for American goods she had provided before the war. Development of markets in other parts of the globe was desirable because the demand there was for manufactured goods which America could most easily supply. He cited the British expansion of foreign financial connections as an example of what might be done in that direction.

Besides the 14,000 who won out in the scramble for seats in the Coliseum hundreds were in the aisles and open spaces and another great crowd blocked the streets about the entrance.

After his speech, the candidate made a short speech to the crowd outside. During the Coliseum speech a man in a gallery shouted to the speaker:

"Tell us your two positions on the league of nations." Cries of "Put him out!" followed, but the nominee replied: "No, don't put him out. We're only going to put the Democrats out in this campaign."

As the speaker started to outline his views another man interrupted with a query about the Hitchcock reservations, and, although the senator shouted to the police not to molest the interrupter, they hustled him toward the doorway.

More Meats in Belfast
BELFAST, Oct. 16.—Rioting in the notorious Maribone district of North Belfast by Sinn Féiners and Unionists, which started this afternoon and continued tonight in a more serious form. Troops were obliged to fire into the crowds, killing John Gibson, shipyard worker. Fifteen persons are in hospitals in consequence of the day's disorders.

U. OF A. BEATS ARMY
TUCSON, Oct. 16.—The University of Arizona football team overwhelmingly defeated the team of G. Troop of the First Cavalry from Camp Harry J. Jones, Douglas, this afternoon by the score of 15 to 0.

Columbia University President Confident Republican Victory Is Solution of World Problems

COX ATTACKSHARDING "VACILLATING" STAND ON LEAGUE COVENANT

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 16.—More charges against Senator Harding of vacillation on the league of nations, "of somersaulting, wiggling and wobbling," were made by Governor Cox in a statement issued tonight and in five speeches closing his three days' Ohio campaign.

Senator Harding's address yesterday at Indianapolis was the basis of Governor Cox's renewed assault. The governor declared it was the senator's twelfth "flip" on the league issue and he charged his opponent with "attempting to wiggle himself into the presidency."

That the senator's Indianapolis speech was a plea to league advocates, after "rejection" of the league in his Des Moines address, was asserted by Governor Cox, who pictured the senator as a "Kamerad, Kamerad!" and crying "Kamerad, Kamerad!" to the hosts of peace.

"A great principle has been vindicated in the hearts of the American people," said the governor's statement. "They are for the league of nations." "When the senatorial oligarchy wrote the Republican platform it was deliberately made meaningless and worthless. It was the vehicle which was to enable the senatorial candidate to ride through the campaign assuming the attitude of all things to all people. To Johnson followers he said what they desired to hear, to the friends of Taft and Root and Wickersham, his speech was veiled in innuendo and implication. In the face of the greatest issue in all history it was unfortunate that great political party did not take a more definite stand. It was pathetic to see its candidate attempting to wiggle himself into the presidency."

West Favoring League
"I was convinced when I left the great western country that a storm of protest and indignation was growing. It is here, and Senator Harding is helpless in No Man's Land, bereft of public confidence. Within a week, Judge Taft sent forward a flag of truce from Vancouver, B. C., stating his candidate had seen the light. Yesterday Judge Root and 21 associates in New York came forward with another flag of truce. This morning Senator Harding leaves the dugout and comes to the hosts of peace, with his hands to high heaven, crying 'Kamerad, Kamerad!'"

America has heard the cry before and found that it came from those who could not be trusted, even after they surrendered. Speaking plainly, Senator Harding deserves his present plight. No man who in the midst of grave conditions exhibits only words, words and then more words, which mean nothing, deserves the confidence of the people."

"I felicitate the friends of peace," the statement concluded. "The new era in the world is issued. It has been a great fight, not for the Democratic party, but for humanity. The jury has the evidence and it calmly but happily awaits the hour to render the verdict."

Use by his opposition of an editorial in his newspapers six years ago criticizing traveling salesmen was denounced by Governor Cox in his address here tonight.

Grills Coleman du Pont
The traveling men's bureau of the Republican national committee, under the leadership of Coleman du Pont, chairman of the national committee for Delaware, Governor Cox charged, is spreading "false propaganda" that the governor had attacked the American traveling men.

Asserting that the editorial was written by a paid editorial writer while the governor was absent, Governor Cox recited how he had compelled an immediate editorial apology from the du Ponts.

Coleman du Pont, Governor Cox said, is not a traveling man, but "the Krupp of America," citing his own position as chairman of the Krupp family of Germany, and his own position as chairman of the Krupp family of Germany.

"I am not so much concerned about the deceitful propaganda," said Governor Cox, "as I am about the people's understanding just what is going on. I hold in my hand the letter and circular issued by Coleman du Pont as chairman of the Traveling Men's bureau of the Republican national committee. I think everyone knows that Coleman du Pont is not a traveling man and that he has no great public interest in stake in this campaign. I can understand how he would undertake to organize groups and stir up prejudices to encompass my defeat because Coleman du Pont, as the Krupp of America, a member of the great munition family, knows what it means should I be elected and secure the ratification of the treaty of peace and the league of nations."

When men bleed and die on the battlefields, the munition makers receive dividends and the league of nations definitely provides against this sort of profiteering in the future. Not only is the league of nations designed to make peace permanent, but it provides for taking away the agencies of war for a general disarmament, and as the first step toward disarmament and war prevention, it declares against the manufacture of munitions in any event by private concerns, because such concerns inspire and invite war. No wonder Coleman du Pont is interesting himself in behalf of the reactionary candidate whose motto is scrap the league of nations."

Says Republicans Are Unfair
Governor Cox elicited information regarding his policies, prohibition, Irish question and German and other questions, which, the candidate declared, had been spread by his foes.

Governor Cox retorted that the Republicans had sought to conduct a campaign of "confusion and deception" by injection of what he termed as "extraneous" issues.

"It was evident that when we discovered their creation of a huge corporation," he said, "they were trying to make it a party issue."

"The traveling salesmen's propaganda" was cited by the governor as "the traveling salesmen's propaganda."

(Continued on page 2)

"Wasn't it luck--
that I happened to see it advertised. It was something I had been wanting for a long time —and only by the merest chance I noticed where it was being sold!"

She only happened to see it advertised.
And she considered herself lucky.

But think how often she must have been unlucky—how many good things she must have missed by not being a regular reader of advertisements.

It will pay you to read the advertisements in this paper.
—to make a practice of reading them.
Because:
They carry the news They tell you of new
of reliable stores in and better things.
your town.
They tell you where They save your time and how you can buy to and money and make best advantage. your shopping easier.

Read the advertisements REGULARLY

OHIO FEDERATION OF LABOR DENIES COX ENDORSEMENT

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
DAYTON, O., Oct. 16.—Adhering to the policy of the American Federation of Labor, the Ohio State Federation of Labor, in convention here made no endorsement of political candidates. Through a misunderstanding it was reported Oct. 14 that the convention had endorsed Governor Cox, Democratic presidential candidate.

With Old H. C. L. KNOCKING AT HIS DOOR HE DOES IT
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The title of champion waffle eater of the world today was claimed by Private Paul Francis Jones of the United States marine corps, after eating twenty-six pipes of tobacco, the widest experience and the best talent which the country affords will be called upon to assist in shaping those policies which shall hasten a solution of the people's problems and a meeting of the people's needs.

Prescott Beats Normal
PRESCOTT, Oct. 16.—The Prescott High school football team defeated the eleven of the Northern Arizona Normal school of Flagstaff here today by 12 to 0.

Pesquiera Appointed CONFIDENTIAL AGENT
WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Roberto V. Pesquiera has been appointed confidential agent of the Mexican government in Washington succeeded Fernando Iglesias Calderon, recently recalled to take his seat in the Mexican senate, according to official advices today. The new agent will combine duties of Mexican financial agent in New York, which position he has held since the De la Huerta regime, with those of a secret agent, and will represent the Mexican government in the United States.

Two National Issues
Mr. Butler asserted that much discussion of campaign affairs has no reference to great present issues, which, he said, are only two in number, as follows:

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and